

Teaser from the upcoming book The Re-Education of the Female by author Dante Moore Sr. available in stores July 15, 2008

CHAPTER 3

BLACK MEN ARE INTIMIDATED BY ATTRACTIVE, SUCCESSFUL, EDUCATED SISTAS

This is a complete and total myth. This myth has been perpetrated by women who can't seem to get or keep a man. Don't be mad because men don't want you. There is a reason why you're alone, and that reason is you. It's not men, it's not the brothers, society, your schedule, your job, your income, your religion, your professional or social status, it's you. You're the cause of yourself being single. What women have to realize is that they are the only constant in these failed relationships. The men change as women go from one relationship to another. If all these relationships are failing, I think it's foolish to blame everyone else or label every man as a dog, intimidated, or inferior without looking at the one thing that remains constant, which is yourself. If a female went to ten different psychiatrists and all of them labeled her clinically insane would you think the female was sane and the psychiatrists were wrong? The female is the only thing that remains constant.

What man with any kind of sophistication or values is intimidated by a woman?

Why do women think this way? Because you may have a better job than him, do you think he's intimidated by you? Maybe it's because you're more educated than he is. Could it be that you make more money or you're taller? Yeah, that's it, that's why you're alone because you have all these things and he doesn't and he's jealous of you and of your success. Bitch, please. This is what you tell yourself to help your self-esteem and to justify the fact that you're alone. You're alone because you've forgotten the fact that you're a woman. You're out of touch with your feminine side. No masculine heterosexual man wants a woman who acts like a man. For the most part sistas are smart-mouthed, pushy, overbearing, overweight, and overly critical, have become obsessively involved in church and the lives of their children or friends and are basically clueless about men. This is in part because Black culture or society in general has taught women that a man should find you. Society has taught Black women to falsely believe that they're queens and they should sit perched upon pedestals and all available successful men should chase after them. In the words of comedian Paul Mooney, "Wake up, nigga. Wake up."

Copyright 2008

Dante Moore Sr. —AKA— (The Re-Educator)

<http://www.thereeducation.com>

Preorder the book today!